

Dear Dr. Laubach,

As you already know I had been experiencing some really bad neck pain and muscle spasms for the last 10 years. I did not realize how bad it was until you pointed out that you could see the difference in my shoulders just by looking at me. I couldn't stop staring at my neck in the mirror when I went home that night. I knew in the back of my mind that people would recognize my shoulder and neck when they would meet me. I was deeply hurt by this, but I didn't think that there was anything I could do about it.

Although I'd been under chiropractic care before, I would only go to the doctor when the pain was so unbearable that I couldn't sleep at night. I didn't realize that I needed to actually correct the cause of the pain in order to keep it from returning. Since you have been treating me, my friends and husband have remarked on how much different I look and act. People don't stare at my neck when they meet me anymore and I have a lot more self confidence. My husband tells me that I have a different look in my eyes and I am a happier person to be around. Even though my neck pain is gone I look forward to every single treatment in your office. You truly are an amazing doctor and I tell everyone about what you did for me. Thank you so much.

Sincerely,

Janice Somerset
